DIABETES PREVENTION:

FOUR STEPS ON THE ROAD TO HEALTH

November is Diabetes Awareness Month

The old adage is true that every journey begins with a single step. On the road to improving your health, small lifestyle changes can lead to dramatic results, especially for people at risk of developing Type 2 diabetes.

"It's never too late to make lifestyle changes and reduce your risk of developing Type 2 diabetes," says Dr. Valerie Espinosa, an endocrinologist with Texas Diabetes and Endocrinology.

Diabetes comes in two forms: Type 1, which mainly affects children and is not currently preventable, and Type 2, which is usually diagnosed later in life and is often preventable. Most people who develop Type 2 diabetes go through a phase called pre-diabetes in which their blood sugar is slightly elevated. But some simple steps can help people with pre-diabetes avoid the progression to Type 2 diabetes.

Step 1: Get More Physical Activity.

Exercise can help people to lose weight, lower blood sugar, and boost the body's sensitivity to insulin, which helps the body regulate sugar.

"While aerobic exercise is important for overall good health," says Dr. Espinosa, "resistance training to build up muscle mass is especially important for someone with pre-diabetes."

Step 2: Eat More Vegetables, Beans, Nuts, Whole Grains.

Adding more fiber and whole grains to your diet can reduce your risk of progressing from pre-diabetes to Type 2 diabetes.

When shopping for breads, pasta products, and cereals, look for the words "whole grain" on the label. Aim for making at least half of the grains you eat whole grains.

Step 3: Lose a Few Pounds.

Small weight loss goals can have remarkable results in lowering blood glucose levels in people with pre-diabetes. A weight loss of five to seven percent in someone who is overweight can significantly improve their health.

"Someone who is 200-pounds and overweight can set a goal to lose 10 pounds," says Dr. Espinosa.

Step 4: Make Healthier Choices.

Eliminate the temptation to eat foods that you know will raise your blood sugar level, like cookies, potato chips, and sugary drinks, by making healthier choices in the grocery store.

"If you don't have potato chips at home, you won't be tempted to eat them," says Dr. Espinosa.

According to the American Diabetes Association's 2011 statistics, a whopping 79 million adults have pre-diabetes. Small, healthy steps can help keep people with pre-diabetes from joining the 25.8 million adults in the United States who have full-blown Type 2 diabetes. Both pre-diabetes and diabetes can be diagnosed with a simple blood test.

Back To School

School started in August, so now is the time for drivers to pay closer attention to the school zones in the neighborhood. We want to remind you that the speed limit in a school zone is 20mph and traffic fines double!

Other changes to be aware of include;

- Children behaving unpredictably
- School Bus Stops
- Crossing Guards – please obey the guards! Remember, they are there for the safety of you and your children
- New areas of traffic congestion
- Be prepared for delays
- Use of cell phones in schools zones is prohibited!

Please give yourself extra time in the mornings and mid-afternoons and remember if you are traveling in a school zone to slow down.

You've been looking forward to Thanksgiving dinner all year — turkey, mashed potatoes, cranberry sauce, and pumpkin pie. Mmm-mmm! But after you finish that second helping of turkey with gravy, you start to feel a little sleepy.

As your Uncle George starts to explain why eating turkey makes people so tired, you suddenly feel like curling up in front of the TV and napping until next Thanksgiving. But is gobbling up all that turkey really to blame?

THE USUAL SUSPECT: L-TRYPTOPHAN

Not exactly. Here's why: Turkey meat contains a lot of an amino acid called L-tryptophan (say: el-trip-teh-fan). Amino acids are the "building blocks" for the proteins that make up our muscles and other important parts of our bodies. (L-tryptophan is just one kind of amino acid — there are many different kinds of amino acids in the foods we eat.)

When we eat foods that contain L-tryptophan, this amino acid travels in the blood from the digestive system and later enters the brain. The brain then changes the L-tryptophan into another chemical called serotonin (say: sare-uh-toh-nin). Serotonin calms us down and helps us sleep.

But scientists now know that L-tryptophan can really only make a person tired right away if it is eaten or taken by itself without any amino acids. And the protein in turkey contains plenty of other amino acids!

BLAME IT ON BLOOD FLOW

Most scientists think that there's a different reason why eating a special meal might make you drowsy. Eating a big Thanksgiving dinner causes increased blood flow to the stomach (needed to help digest the meal) and less blood flow to the brain.

AVOIDING DROWSINESS

So just how do you avoid that sleepy feeling on Turkey Day?

- Eat small, healthy meals (try to limit junk foods) throughout the day before you sit down for your big meal — don't starve yourself in anticipation of the feast to come.
- Have small portions of foods that are part of your Thanksgiving meal (including whatever veggies are on the table).
- Drink water and take breaks while you are eating to see how full you've become.
- Stop eating once you're full — there will always be leftovers tomorrow.
- Finally, take a walk outside afterward to digest your meal. This will make you feel better than crashing on the couch.

Follow these tips and have a Happy Thanksgiving — gobble, gobble!
